Brand Heart

OUR WHY

Healthcare should help with headaches, not cause them. We exist to give Australians access to alternative care that actually makes them feel good.

MISSION

To keep things simple: we're here to help you feel better. Feel-good healthcare that takes the stress out of getting help.

VISION

A world where healthcare doesn't suck. Where people feel like a person, not a chart. Where relief is accessible, not a battle to earn.

Our Values

01 Kindness & Empathy

We're not here to rush you out the door. Every person deserves to feel heard and supported.

03 Zero Judgement

No cold stares, no intimidating jargon. A safe, kind space where you can talk about what you need.

05 Laid-Back but Legit

We keep it chill, but we're serious about providing the best care. Approachable and expert.

02 Patient-Centred Care

You're more than a chart. Your care should be personal and feel good, every time.

04 Accessible & Convenient

Healthcare should be set up for the people who need it. Online, simple, no barriers.

06 Going Above & Beyond

"Good enough" isn't good enough. We go all in because our patients deserve it.

Conditions We Can Mention

HOW TO FRAME CONDITIONS CORRECTLY

Naming a condition is permitted when framed around why someone seeks care, not what the treatment does. Use "maybe helpful with issues relating to" or "our clinicians may support patients experiencing" - never "treats", "relieves", or "fixes". The sub-copy model "When [other thing] isn't working" is compliant and positions Hellomello as a next step without making any efficacy claim.

Testimonials

What counts as a testimonial

A comment becomes a regulated testimonial if it references any clinical aspect of care. A clinical aspect exists when any of the following is expressed:

01 Symptom
The specific symptom or reason the person sought treatment. Mentioning why they came = clinical aspect.

02 Diagnosis or Treatment
The specific diagnosis they received or treatment provided by the practitioner.

03 Outcome
Any specific result, improvement, or reference to the practitioner's skill or effectiveness, directly or by comparison.

The one-question filter

Does this review mention why they came, what they were treated for, or what changed in their health? If yes, it cannot be used. If it only describes the experience of the service itself, it can.

WE CAN USE THESE

- " The booking process was so easy. I wassetupwithina day.
- " The nurses were so kind and easy to talk to. I never felt judged.
- " I was surprised how simple the whole process was.
- " The team was professional and the whole experience felt really smooth.
- " I wish I had done this sooner. Getting started was the easiest part.

WE CANNOT USE THESE

- " My pain is so much better since starting with Hellomello. (outcome)
- " I finally got a good night's sleep after my first month. (outcome referencing symptom)
- " The doctor understood my anxiety and knew exactly what I needed (Sympton + Clinical Skill)
- " After years of chronic pain I finally found something that works. (outcome)

What we can ask for

When requesting reviews from patients, steer them toward non-clinical topics:

- ✓ How easy was the booking process?
- ✓ How did the team make you feel?
- ✓ How was the communication throughout?
- ✓ Would you recommend the experience to a friend?

What we steer away from

Never ask patients to describe:

- ✗Why they originally came to Hellomello
- ✗ Any health changes since starting
- ✗ Their specific condition or diagnosis
- ✗ How effective the treatment or prescription was
